NEW RULES AT PARK ARE PROMULGATED

Members of Board Announce Bicycle Riding Within the Grounds Will Be Prohibited.

WORK BEGUN ON STONE WALK

Other Improvements Contemplated by Directors Delayed Because of Insufficient Funds.

Members of the board in-charge of Shields Park have announced that bicycle riding within the grounds will be prohibited in the future. The rule is promulgated as several minor accidents and near accidents have occurred there recently when boys attempted to ride their bicycles over the walks when they were crowded with pedestrians. Some of the cyclists have attempted to make speed-ways out of the walks, according to reports reaching the board, and it was deemed advisable to keep bicycles out of the grounds altogether.

The park board has not permitted automobiles or other vehicles in the grounds for several years. A parking space near the Seventh street entrance is provided for automobiles and when crowds assemble at the grounds a special officer is kept on duty to direct the motorists to prevent a clogging of cars in the parking space.

Work was begun this morning on a new crushed stone walk leading from the main entrance on Seventh street towards the auditorium. The park board expected to have a number of such walks constructed by this time but this work like other contemplated improvements was delayed because of lack of funds. The board has only about $750 a year to spend on the grounds and as it must pay for the lights, custodian's salary and other expenses a very small sum is left for improvements. The trimming of the grass is an item of considerable expense. Some expenses pertaining to the swimming pool and flower beds are met through the refreshment concession contract.

The park is hopeful that a large appropriation will be available next year so that the work of beautifying the grounds can be completed more rapidly. The park fund is fixed each fall by the city council and the amount cannot exceed that levy. The park is becoming more popular each year and the board believes the public will demand a larger levy for this fund as a greater number of people benefit from the expenditures.

FARMERS KEEP WATCH FOR APPEARANCE OF ARMY WORM

Invasion of Pest Thus Far Confined to Section of Driftwood Township.

Following reports of damage in the southwestern part of Driftwood township by the army worm, farmers in all parts of Jackson county are keeping a close watch for the appearance of the pest. The army worm comes in such numbers that it is almost impossible to check them in their course of destruction as they sweep through wheat, corn and hay fields, leveling growing crops to the ground. The damage that has been done in Driftwood township cannot be estimated. Some farmers are of the opinion that an insect which is an enemy of the army worm will appear about the middle of the month and nothing will be done to fight the pest until that time.

The army worm, it is reported, invades timothy, corn and wheat fields first and scarcely none of the clover fields in Driftwood township have been damaged. The fields of corn visited by the pest have been practically destroyed, it is stated, while only the blades of the wheat are eaten. In the fields through which the worms have swept the wheat straw and the grain heads are standing.

INCREASE FOR ALL POSTAL EMPLOYEES

New Bill Which was Signed by President Provides for Substantial Advance in Salaries.

POSTMASTER IS BENEFITED

Ten Days a Year Sick Leave in Addition to Vacation of Fifteen Days Annually Provided.

A careful review of the new bill providing salary increases for employees of the postoffice department reveals that every employee will be substantially benefited. The bill was passed during the closing days of congress and has been signed by President Wilson. Postoffice clerks, city carriers, rural carriers, the assistant postmaster and the postmaster will receive more money each year under the new bill.

The law provides that the salary of the postmaster will be computed on the receipts of his office. The local postmaster will receive about $2,700 a year, which is an increase of approximately $100 annually.

The salaries of postmasters and their assistants are regulated by postoffice receipts, the law providing that postmasters at offices with receipts ranging between $18,000 and $22,000, shall receive $2,700 annually and assistants at the same offices shall have $2,000, which is the grade which applies here.

The basic salary for clerks at first and second class offices and for letter carriers in the city delivery service, is $1,400. For each year of service, a clerk or letter carrier is entitled to $100 more on the year and promotion to the next highest grade up to the fifth, which is the maximum.

Another provision of the law says that substitute clerks and letter carriers will receive the same salary as the regular employees. (Continued on page 2, column 3.)

DRIVE TO UNIONIZE THREE MILLION WORKERS PLANNED

Proposal Made By American Federation of Labor in Convention in Montreal.

By United Press.
Montreal, June 11—A drive to unionize three million office workers will begin soon in all big cities under authority of the annual convention of the American federation of labor in convention here. The executive council will be in direct charge of the drive. The decision to organize office workers may be taken as the reply of organized labor to the frequently heard complaint that only the incomes of rich men and mechanicians have increased at all proportionately with the rising cost of living.

Experienced organizers of the labor movement will be enlisted in the drive intended to enroll both male and female office workers.

The white collar element now is partially represented in organized labor through a few local unions enrolling college professors, school teachers, office workers and clerks.

$352,481 IS RECOVERED BY BOARD OF ACCOUNTS

Jesse Eschbach, Chief Examiner Files Report Covering First Year of His Service

By United Press.
Indianapolis, June 11—As chief examiner of the state board of accounts, Jesse Eschbach today made public a report showing the board has recovered $352,481.16 of public funds during the first year of his service. This, the report showed, was $162,852.47 greater than during the year ending June 1, 1919, when Gilbert Hendren was chief examiner.

During the first year, Eschbach raised the salaries of his office force, but instituted new economies reducing the expenses of the office more than $10,000, the report showed.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS HELP TO FRAME PLATFORM

Planks on Naturalization Suffrage, Social and Industrial Justice Adopted.

By United Press.
Chicago, June 11.—Planks on naturalization, woman suffrage, social and industrial justice, education and health, strong planks on child labor and women in industry proposed by various women's organizations have been accepted by the Republican convention. They have recognized the requests of the various women's organizations notably the League of Women Voters asking for certain planks, with the health and morale of women and children as well as the education of youths and working hours of all working people, also a strong suffrage resolution which calls for the governors of Vermont and Connecticut to call special sessions at once and ratify the suffrage amendment.

Women feel that their labors have not been in vain. It is a matter of regret that no woman delegate was made a member of the resolutions committee. Had this been done they would have been represented on every committee.

DEMOCRATS EXPECTED TO TAKE UP CHALLENGE

Republican Claims of Constructive Legislation by Congress Draw Fire.

By United Press.
Chicago, June 11.—Many of the most important planks of the Republican platform today were expected to bring a direct challenge from the Democrats in their convention at San Francisco. The Republican platform was adopted by the convention last evening. Democrats are certain to meet with bitter denunciation the claims of the Republican platform that the last session of the national legislature has a praise worthy record. They probably point to several accomplishments of President Wilson that congress failed to enact and place the blame for present conditions on this failure.

COLISEUM RINGS WITH WILD DEMONSTRATIONS

Spectacular "Show" Staged by Boosters of General Wood When His Name is placed Before the Republican National Convention by Governor Allen, of Kansas—Hundreds Chant "Wood, Wood Win" as Feathers of varied Colors Flutter from Roof of Auditorium—Shouts and Cheers Delay Proceedings for 39 Minutes—Mention of Lowden's Name Bring Forth a Demonstration of 40 Minutes—Pictures of Illinois Governor Suddenly Appear Throughout Great Hall as Nominating Speech is Concluded—Johnson Boosters Join in an Ovation of 20 Minutes when His name is Presented to Delegates—Coolidge Formally Nominated.

BALLOTING MAY START TONIGHT

By United Press.
Chicago, June 11.—The Republican national convention today plunged into the dramatic business of nominating a candidate for president. The first nomination was that of Major General Leonard Wood. As the roll of the states was called Alabama passed and Arizona yielded to Kansas. Governor Allen began his speech in behalf of Wood.

The coliseum was packed to the roof as Allen in a strong voice, audible in the back of the topmost gallery, fought his verbal fight for Wood's candidacy.

Allen presented Wood's case like a man engaged in a vigorous argument with an invisible opponent. There was enthusiasm in his every gesture and he cut right into the applause, not waiting for it to subside, in his eagerness to tell the delegates why Wood should be the Republican nominee. Allen held his glasses in his right hand, his manuscript in his left and gesticulated with both.

The first mention of General Wood's name passed almost unnoticed in the text of a letter praising him. It was mentioned by Allen twice more in the next minute and each time there was a burst of applause, each a little louder than the one before. As Allen read Roosevelt's praise of Wood cheering broke out and continued until he motioned for silence. The cheering seemed to be distributed among all the delegates, but it did not involve all of them by any means. Many of them sat silent. The perspiration streamed down Allen's face, his voice grew husky but he waxed more enthusiastic as he talked. Allen clinched his glasses in his fist which he shook out over the crowd as he pounded his points for Wood.

"Some object to him because of his uniform," he said. "I ask, when did the uniform become an emblem of disqualification in this country?" Allen named great men who had worn the uniform from Washington to Roosevelt and Roosevelt got the greatest cheer of all. The crowd grew noisier as Allen talked and it seemed as if most of the noise was coming from the floor.

Cries of "good" and a long blast on a tin horn resulted when Allen defended Wood against those who called him a militarist.

As Allen concluded demanding the nomination of Wood a mighty yell went up. Showers of many colored Wood feathers, fluttered down from the roof in a veritable storm. Wood penants appeared throughout the crowd. The whole scene was flooded with the glare of arc lamps while movies were taken.

The delegation in the center of the hall, including Michigan, Iowa, New York, Massachusetts, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and the most of New Jersey remained seated. The Wood boosters kept the ovation going chanting "Wood, Wood, Win." when it showed signs of losing any of its strength. The band began playing. Only an occasional note could be heard. Shril whistles cut through the roar of cheers.

Many state standards were decorated with Wood feathers. They included Arizona, Maryland, Rhode Island, Florida, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Texas, Idaho and Maine. The Philippine standard was crowned with a Wood banner.

The delegates who were not taking part in the "show" manifested increasing symptoms of ennui. Some produced newspapers and read them in a bored manner. Others gossiped quietly together.

The Wood demonstration jogged along and steadily grew just a little bit less full bodied as it entered the second half hour.

As Chairman Lodge came forward with his gavel he was greeted with the Wood chant, shrill cries, whistles and more, horn blowing.

Lodge smiled as a renewed burst of noise drowned out his raps for order. He waited a while, then hampered with renewed vigor. The tin horns responded and once more the chairman retreated. Wood's demonstration lasted thirty-nine minutes.

Congressman Rodenburg began his speech nominating Lowden. Immediately the Arkansas delegation displayed photographs of Lowden. There was so much confusion Lodge has to beat for order before Rodenburg could begin. Rodenburg spoke in a calm dispassionate manner, his finger tips pressed together. Describing the conditions of unrest which he said existed in the country he began using a few gestures, but they were restrained and he appeared reserved in contrast with the vigorous, emphatic demeanor of Governor Allen and Mrs. Robbing who proceeded him.

Careful attention was given Rodenburg's address and at first there was little response. Upon conclusion of Rodenburg's speech the delegate section was suddenly filled with banners bearing Lowden's pictures. Many women participated in the Lowden demonstration.

Murray Crane, member of the "old guard" predicted there would be few ballots. During the Lowden demonstration it was learned its present intention of the convention officials to keep the convention in continuous session until a nominee is chosen.

Former Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, took the gavel while Chairman Lodge was at lunch. At 12:21 the Lowden demonstration reached the forty-minute mark. Senator Beveridge was even a more strenuous gavel wielder than Lodge had been and the Lowden demonstration having eclipsed the Wood time generally subsided.

Charles Pickett, of Iowa, seconded the nomination of Lowden.

From a reliable source it was learned that they expect to swing the senator's strength to Wood first and if Wood is not nominated to support Harding.

Lowden supporters also played for the suffrage support by sending in Mrs. Fletcher Dobbins, of Illinois, to make a seconding speech for their man.

Governor Morrow, of Kentucky, mentioned as a vice-presidential possibility, was the next speaker to second Lowden.

Charles Wheeler, of California, put in nomination Hiram Johnson. The mention of the name of Johnson brought forth only a very modest, short lived cheer.

Senator Johnson shortly after his nomination speech started, left his headquarters for the coliseum, but it was stated he does not expect to appear in the delegate section on the floor. At the outset Wheeler's speech was quietly received and several of his pauses passed in silence.

A quotation from Lincoln "government of the people, for the people and by the people," got the first applause for Wheeler, but the crowd slowly warmed up. The Johnson "show" lasted about twenty minutes.

Coolidge was the fourth candidate to be put in nomination.

INCREASE FOR ALL POSTAL EMPLOYEES

riers in first and second class offices, when appointed regular clerks or carriers, shall have credit for actual time served on a basis of one year for each 306 of eight hour days served as a substitute, and appointed to the grade to which such clerk or carrier would have progressed had his original appointment as substitute been to grade one.

The standard for rural mail carriers pay under the new law is $1,800 a year for a route of twenty-four miles. For routes over this standard length, the carrier is paid $30 a year additional for each extra mile covered. Carriers on routes less than twenty-four miles but more than twenty-two miles long, will receive $1,728.

Another section of the law, which takes an advance step in the postal service, provides that in addition to the fifteen days, vacation with pay, allowed each year, every postal employee is entitled to ten days a year sick leave with pay, to be cumulative for a period of three years, but no sick leave with pay in excess of thirty days shall be granted during any three consecutive years.

Another section reads: "The postmaster general may, when the interest of the service requires, transfer any clerk to the position of carrier or any carrier to the position of clerk, such transfer to be made to the corresponding grade and salary of the clerk or carrier transferred."

Several years ago a transfer could not be obtained under any condition, but in recent years it has been permissible to allow a transfer on application. The change was made with the view of improving the service wherever a transfer is deemed advisable.

sociation to be held at Indianapolis Tuesday and Wednesday June 15th and 16th will be one of the most important meetings ever held by the dry goods and ready-to-wear men of the state.

A two days' program has been arranged which includes addresses by the most prominent personages in the trade. Included in the program is the demonstration sale to be staged by Mrs. Genevieve Reid, Educational Director of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago. Mrs. Reid will be assisted by an expert saleslady from Chicago and an expert shopper from Indianapolis. All the rules of good salesmanship will be brought out during this demonstration sale and as merchants generally are interested greatly in salesmanship, this feature will prove interesting and instructive.

Store problems of today will be handled by men nationally known in the dry goods and suit trade. At the smoker Tuesday evening, the meeting will be in charge of E. S. Kinnear of Marion and will consist entirely of discussions of the questions submitted to the question box, all questions being upon store problems.

The Association is finishing a novel and energetic drive for new members. Within the last week membership has doubled and represents the representative retail dry goods and ready-to-wear men from every quarter of Indiana.

The officers of the Association anticipate the largest attendance ever had at any previous convention of the retail dry goods trade of Indiana.

Rev. and Mrs. O. G. Misamore spent Thursday in Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Turmail were in this city Thursday evening enroute to their home in Vallonia. #### SOCIAL EVENTS

REBEKAHS TO BANQUET.

Arrangements were completed by the Rebekahs at their meeting last night for an elaborate entertainment and banquet which will be held Thursday night, June 24. It will mark the completion of an interesting membership contest which has been conducted during the last six months. The lodge was divided into two groups, one known as the "Pinks," under the leadership of Miss Sadie Grace Meyers, and the other as the "Greens," with Mrs. J. W. Hustedt chairman. The contest resulted in much friendly rivalry among the members and has been helpful to the lodge. Points were also credited for attendance as well as new members.

Announcement was recently made that the "Pinks" had won the contest and under the conditions specified the losing side agreed to entertain in any manner that the winners might designate. The winners suggested that the degree staff and officers of Franklin lodge, No. 522, be invited here to give the work to a class of local candidates. The Franklin staff and officers agreed to present the work, the acceptance having been read at the meeting last night. The losing side will serve a banquet and give an entertainment. Twenty-seven new members were received by the Rebekahs during the contests and all but six have already been initiated. The members of the local lodge are promised an interesting meeting on June 24 and a large attendance is expected.

New Foreign Policy of Mexico Expected to Be Changed by Incoming Government.

By United Press.

Mexico City, June 11.—In one respect at least, it is confidently believed that the foreign policy of the new Mexican revolutionary government will differ radically from that of the late lamented Venustiano Carranza. This change of policy lies in the matter of Pan-American relations.

Carranza was obsessed with an idea, conscientious or otherwise, that he was destined to go down in history as the man who had defended the rights of all Latin-America against the predatory designs of the "Colossus del Norte"—namely, the United States. At times his policy indicated that he even dreamed of an alliance among the Latin-American nations. Carranza sought to create the impression in Central and South America that Mexico constantly was being made the victim of unwarranted attacks from the United States. With this theory as a background he endeavored to draw South America into an attitude of sympathy for Mexico as well as antipathy toward any Mexican policy which emanated from Washington.

Mexico City newspapers which reflected the official viewpoint frequently spoke of the "Carranza Doctrine"—a doctrine which supposedly aimed to unify Latin-America in all matters political, social and commercial. To achieve this aim, Carranza employed a form of propaganda which, though it may have some effect, certainly bore few evidences of subtlety.

An occasional attack upon the Monroe Doctrine was one form of campaign. Sometimes it was accompanied by a suggestion that an exclusive Latin-American doctrine would be more satisfactory. This mode of propaganda did not always arise from Mexico City sources, even though it had its inspiration here. Carranza, through his ministers abroad, was in touch with certain Central and South American citizens, could be depended upon to direct an attack upon the United States.

However, Carranza's propaganda functioned chiefly through his Foreign Office. Its mode of operation was illustrated particularly well at the time the Jenkins case was in the public eye and the State Department in Washington had resumed its note-writing activity.

Scarcely a day passed but what

Carranza's side of the story, illuminated by statements of how the United States again was abusing Mexico, was sent from the Mexican Foreign Office to the Mexican legations throughout Latin-America. These cabled reports were to be given out either in the form of interviews or direct statements to the Latin-American press. All press comment, either Mexican or American, which was favorable to Mexico in any degree, was assembled and cabled to South America. In turn, South American opinion which favored Mexico and attacked the United States, was collected at this end and given to the newspapers of the capital for home consumption.

This form of procedure was general, but always found stimulus when some prominent "issue" arose between Mexico and the United States.

General Alvaro Obregon, the leader of the revolution which ousted Carranza, has declared him-

"HAD TO GET HELP QUICK" HE SAYS

"Tanlac Proved to be the Thing I Needed and I Couldn't Ask for Better Health, Now."

"By the help of Tanlac I have regained my lost health, and today I am in as good condition physically as any one could wish to be," said Wade Hummer, 302 East Wagner street, South Bend, Ind.

"About the time I was sixteen years old," he continued, "I had an attack of measles, and since that time my kidneys have worried me a great deal. Now and then, for all these years, I suffered with a dull pain across the small of my back and in my hips. If I did any heavy lifting or strained myself in any way, the pain would get so bad I could hardly stand it. I kept getting worse, until last spring I began suffering terribly with severe shooting pains up and down my sides and back, through my shoulders and all across my hips. Then, too, there was always a heavy feeling like lead in the pit of my stomach, my liver seemed to be sluggish, and I always had a bad taste in my mouth. I was badly constipated, had severe throbbing headaches, and often became so dizzy I could hardly stand up. In fact, I was in misery all the time, day and night, and could not do anything like as much work as I had formerly been able to do."

"Finally, I got in such a bad fix I knew I had to get something to help me mighty quick or get down flat of my back in bed. I had heard so much about Tanlac I decided to try it, and it turned out to be the very thing I needed. I had taken only a few doses when I commenced to get better, and in a short while I was free of all pain and my stomach and liver were in good condition, and I have been in the best of health ever since. Tanlac is certainly a grand medicine, and through the benefits I have received from it I am working every day without a particle of trouble, while before taking it I just had to force myself to work. I will always have a good word for Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Seymour by Maxon's Pharmacy, in Crothersville by C. W. Taulman, and in Brownstown by Chas. Brock.

FLY SHOWING UP IN WHEAT FIELDS

General Appearance of Winter Variety However, Shows Some Improvement.

OATS CONDITION NORMAL

Rye Harvest in Southern Indiana Counties Will Begin Middle of Month.

Indianapolis, June 11—The June 1 condition figure for winter wheat indicates a crop of approximately 21,000,000 bushels. This is preliminary and subject to change later.

The general appearance of the crop is fairly good and looks better than a month ago, but the Hessian fly ravages are beginning to show up. The straw is falling in considerable quantity in some of the southern counties where it is farthest advanced. In some fields as many as eleven flaxseed have been found on one straw. Joint worm is also a menace in some counties.

The spring wheat acreage has returned to about the usual acreage. The condition is only fair, and on the June 1 figures a crop of about 42,000 bushels is indicated.

The oats acreage, for the state as a whole, shows 2 percent above last year and amounts to 1,862,000 acres. The condition June 1 was 84 percent of normal and indicates a crop of approximately 61,000,000 bushels. In some fields the plants have a good color and seem vigorous and healthy while in others the top growth is short and a spotted appearance is quite perceptible. Considerable of the crop was put in under unfavorable weather conditions and has not yet recovered. Early sown oats are exception good.

The acreage of barley, which is very small, increased but little over last year. On the figures reported for the first of June a production of about 1,500,000 bushels is indicated. A large part of the barley acreage this year was sown in abandoned wheat fields and will nearly all be consumed on the farms where grown.

Of all the small grain crops rye shows the best condition at this time, being 85 percent of normal. On this figure the production will amount to about 5,000,000 bushels. The crop is headed out in all parts of the state and cutting will commence about the middle of the month in the southern counties.

Apples show the best prospect since 1915. All trees, that were given proper care, will bear an exceptionally large crop this year. Present figures indicate a production of 6,600,000 bushels. Last year the total production amounted to only 1,700,000 bushels.

The condition of the hay crop shows a slight decline from the May report with the total production amounting to about 2,900,000 tons.

The clover acreage is four points under last year. Some of the crop in the northern counties was severely winter-killed and soy-beans, cowpeas and Sudan grass were sown in place of it.

Alfalfa also shows two points decline in acreage compared with last year. The condition is very good, however.

Pastures show a decided improvement over last month and where stock was not turned on them too early they are in excellent condition.

Field beans and peas are about average but hard to estimate at this time because planting has just been completed in some of the northern counties.

The transplanting of cabbages has been completed and the crop shows about the average condition at this time.

The labor shortage has seriously interfered with the production of onions in some sections. The condition is slightly better than average, however.

The prospects for peaches and pears are the best for five years. Present condition figures indicate a production of 770,000 bushels of peaches and 562,000 bushels of pears.

Blackberries and raspberries show a condition of 90 percent of normal, which is about average.

The transplanting of melons was only completed in the northern counties late in May. Weather conditions have not been very favorable and the condition of the plants is hardly up to the average.

The VALLEY of the GIANTS

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "Cappy Ricks"

Copyright by Peter B. Kyne

A cluster of wild orchids pendent from the great fungus-covered roots of a giant challenged her attention. She gathered them. Farther on, in a spot where a shaft of sunlight fell, she plucked an armful of golden California poppies and flaming rhododendrons, and with her delicate burden she came at length to the giant-guarded clearing where the halo of sunlight fell upon the grave of Bryce Cardigan's mother. There were red roses on it—a couple of dozen, at least, and these she rearranged in order to make room for her own offering.

"Poor dear!" she murmured audibly. "God didn't spare you for much happiness, did he?"

A voice, deep, resonant, kindly, spoke a few feet away. "Who is it?" Shirley, startled, turned swiftly. Seated across the little amphitheater in a lumberjack's easy-chair fashioned from an old barrel, John Cardigan sat, his slightest gaze bent upon her. "Who is it?" he repeated.

"Shirley Summer," she answered. "You do not know me, Mr. Cardigan."

"No," replied he, "I do not. That is a name I have heard, however. You are Seth Pennington's niece. Is someone with you?"

"I am quite alone, Mr. Cardigan."

"And why did you come here alone?" he queried.

"I—I wanted to think."

"You mean you wanted to think clearly, my dear. Ah, yes, this is the place for thoughts." He was silent a moment. Then: "You were thinking about Miss Shirley Summer. I heard you. You said: 'Poor dear! God didn't spare you for much happiness, did he?' Then you knew—about her being here."

"Yes, sir. Some ten years ago, when I was a very little girl, I met your son Bryce. He gave me a ride on his Indian pony, and we came here. So I remember."

"Well, I declare! Ten years ago, eh? You've met, eh? You've met Bryce since his return to Sequoia, I believe. He's quite a fellow now."

"He is indeed."

John Cardigan nodded sagely. "So that's why you thought aloud," he remarked impersonally. "Bryce told you about her. You are right, Miss Shirley Summer. God didn't give her much time for happiness—just three years; but oh, such wonderful years! Such wonderful years!"

"It was mighty fine of you to bring flowers," he announced presently. "I appreciate that. I wish I could see you. You must be a dear, nice, thoughtful girl. Won't you sit down and talk to me?"

"I should be glad to," she answered, and seated herself on the brown carpet of redwood twigs close to his chair.

"So you came up here to do a little clear thinking," he continued in his deliberate, amiable tones. "Do you come here often?"

"This is the third time in ten years," she answered. "I feel that I have no business to intrude here. This is your shrine, and strangers should not profane it."

"I think I should have resented the presence of any other person, Miss Summer. I resented you—until you spoke."

"I'm glad you said that, Mr. Cardigan. It sets me at ease."

"I hadn't been up here for nearly two years until recently. You see I—I don't own the Valley of the Giants any more."

"Indeed. To whom have you sold it?"

"I do not know, Miss Summer. I had to sell; there was no other way out of the jam Bryce and I were in; so I sacrificed my sentiment for my boy. However, the new owner has been wonderfully kind and thoughtful. She reorganized that old skid-road so even an old blind duffer like me can find his way in and out without getting lost—and she had this easy-chair made for me. I have told Judge Moore, who represents the unknown owner, to extend my thanks to his client. But words are so empty, Shirley Summer. If that new owner could only understand how grateful I am—how profoundly her courtesy touches me—"

"Her courtesy?" Shirley echoed. "Did a woman buy the Giants?"

He smiled down at her. "Why, certainly. Who but a woman—and a dear, kind, thoughtful woman—would have thought to have this chair made and brought up here for me?"

Fell a long silence between them; then John Cardigan's trembling hand went groping out toward the girls. "Why, how stupid of me not to have guessed it immediately!" he said. "You are the new owner, Mr. Cardigan. If the silent prayers of a very unhappy old man will bring God's blessing on you—there, there, girl! I didn't intend to make you weep. What a tender heart it is, to be sure!"

She took his great toll-worn hand, and her hot tears fell on it, for his gentleness, his benignancy, had touched her deeply. "Oh, you must not tell anybody! You mustn't," she cried.

He put his hand on her shoulder as she knelt before him. "Good land of love, girl, what made you do it? Why should a girl like you give a hundred thousand for my Valley of the Giants? Were you—hesitatingly—your uncle's agent?"

"No, I bought it myself—with my own money. My uncle doesn't know I am the new owner. You see, he wanted it for nothing."

"Ah, yes, I suspected as much a long time ago. Your uncle is the modern type of business man. Not very much of an idealist, I'm afraid. But tell me why you decided to thwart the plans of your relative."

"I knew it hurt you terribly to sell your Giants; they were dear to you for sentimental reasons. I understood, also, why you were forced to sell; so I—well, I decided the Giants would be safer in my possession than in my uncle's. In all probability he would have logged this valley for the sake of the clear seventy-two-inch boards he could get from these trees."

"That does not explain satisfactorily to me, why you took sides with a stranger against your own kin," John Cardigan persisted. "There must be a deeper and more potent reason."

"Well," Shirley made answer, glad he could not see the flush of confusion and embarrassment that crimsoned her cheek, "when I came to Sequoia last May, your son and I met, quite accidentally. The stage to Sequoia had already gone, and he was gracious enough to invite me to make the journey in his car. Then we recalled having met as children, and presently I gathered from his conversation that he and his John partner, as he called you, were very dear to each other. I was witness to your meeting that night—I saw him take you in his big arms and hold you tight because you'd—gone blind while he was away having a good time. And you hadn't told him! I thought that was brave of you; and later, when Bryce and Mollie McTavish told me about you—how kind you were, how you felt your responsibility toward your employees and the community—well, I just couldn't help a leaning toward John partner and John partner's boy, because the boy was so fine and true to his father's ideals."

A SHEPHERD BOY CHOSEN KING. I Sam. 16:1-13.

Golden Text.—The Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward.—I Sam. 16:13.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL.—Ps. 2.
PRIMARY TOPIC.—The Story of a Shepherd Boy.
JUNIOR TOPIC.—A Kindly Shepherd Boy.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—The Road to Promotion.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—The Possibilities of Youth.

I. The Lord Rebuked Samuel for Excessive Grief (v. 1).

It was a bitter experience for Samuel to pronounce God's judgment upon Saul. The cause of Samuel's grief was threefold:

1. The wreck of a promising life. In all history, perhaps, a life with greater promise cannot be found, and yet it affords no example of a more wretched failure.
2. A personal loss. No doubt as the spiritual adviser of the king, Samuel found many things in him to admire. His removal, therefore, Samuel most keenly felt.
3. Anxiety for the national welfare. Samuel knew quite well that a change of dynasty oftentimes meant severe war and the reign of anarchy. This would very seriously weaken the already weak kingdom. His concern for the people's good was therefore a part of his grief. One can readily see why Samuel should mourn, but as a prophet of God he should not have indulged to excess. The Lord's question "How long will thou mourn for Saul?" has in it a rebuke for Samuel. Grief for others is a sacred thing, but whenever it is carried so far as to interfere with one's duty it becomes sinful.

II. Samuel Sent to Bethlehem to Anoint Saul's Successor (vv. 1-5).

Though Saul failed, God is able to provide a successor who is better than he. Samuel is directed to go to Bethlehem and from among the sons of Jesse choose a successor. Samuel again showed his weakness in expressing his fear lest Saul should kill him. If God sends a man on an errand what matters it though a thousand Saul's be waiting to kill him? Even though it means death, if God sends, who dare refuse or offer excuse? God instructed him to avoid publicity by the concealment of his real purpose. Some may question the diplomacy of Samuel, but we must remember that no one is under obligation to tell all that he knows, especially to parties who have no moral right to know. To withhold truth which is necessary morally to tell is duplicity which dare not be practiced. God allowed Samuel to hide his true errand under the cloak of a sacrifice in order to shelter his weakness. The whole matter was already decided; the moral acts were already committed; the issues were already faced. The exposure of Samuel to the murderous hatred of Saul would have only made matters worse.

III. The Method of God's Choice (vv. 6-12).

The elders of Bethlehem were somewhat alarmed when Samuel came. He, in the exercise of his judgeship, went from place to place, and at times he doubtless had to deal in severity with the people. He calmed their fears by assuring them that he came peacefully, even to worship God. While the preparation for the sacrifice was being made, Samuel seems to have had the interview with Jesse and his sons. When the eldest of Jesse's sons passed before him he decided that this stalwart young man must be God's choice, but God told him that man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart. We should learn, like Samuel was obliged to do, that the qualifications in God's sight for workers are inward, not bodily. The one who does God's work must do it by leaning upon him, not through personal strength or endowments. To the utter surprise of Samuel and Jesse, David the shepherd boy, was chosen.

IV. Samuel Anoints David (v. 13).

When this stripling of a boy came before Samuel, the Lord indicated his choice. Samuel proceeded to anoint him. This anointing typified the endowment of the Holy Spirit, which is essential for any and all service for God. The preparation which David needed for the office of king was just what he got as a shepherd boy. God's choices are not arbitrary. As king, his responsibility was to defend, feed, and lead God's flock, and this he had learned to do as he attended his father's flock. This promotion of the shepherd boy should be an encouragement for boys of lowly station in life.

The Itching and Sting of Blazing, Fiery Eczema

Seems Like the Skin Is on Fire.

There is a harassing discomfort caused by Eczema that becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source.

The source of Eczema is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle today, and you will see results from the right treatment. Write for advice. self opposed to such a policy and he is being taken at his word. Obregon appreciates, first, that the new government should strive for recognition from Washington at the earliest possible date. He has announced that American capital would be welcomed in Mexico and protected.

Moreover, the revolutionaries may desire, at some future date, to negotiate with the United States for a loan. And Obregon, it is believed, is broad-gauged enough to realize that a policy of hostility toward the United States is not the best method to attain these things.

In the opinion of foreign diplomats here, if Obregon has seen the fallacy of Carranza's foreign policy, and is prepared to modify that policy, it will mean much for the betterment of Pan-American relations.
